Earth Day in Loomis

By GaryLiss

Loomis will be celebrating Earth Day on April 25, 2009 by the newly remodelled Train Depot, 5575 Horseshoe Bar Road in Loomis.

A kickoff meeting to organize Earth Day activities was held on February 2, 2009 at Town Hall. Plans were made to contact environmental groups and government agencies to promote environmental, open space and wildlife issues for the Loomis area. The Earth Day Committee will also be inviting local businesses to sell environmental, natural and organic products and services at this event. The Committee will also invite attendees to get involved in local environmental activities.

As a celebration of the Earth, the Committee is also looking for suggestions for appropriate music to be provided as part of the event. An environmental film festival may also be part of this event.

The Loomis Earth Day celebration will culminate a week of environmental and volunteer activities, starting with an Earth Day celebration in Roseville on April 18th, Creek Week to cleanup creeks throughout the area, and National Volunteer Week.
